

DR. DEEPTI BHARDWAJ

Dr. Deepti Bhardwaj was born on June 25, 1973 in Bareilly district in a social and political environment. Inspired by his grandfather and father, and also by social and political ideology since childhood, she obtained her PhD degree in Hindi subject from MJP Rohilkhand University.

She have been a media panelist in Uttar Pradesh, a member of the Working Committee of Mahila Morcha, Uttar Pradesh and has done many important works by joining the National Human Rights Commission and worked as Editor for institution of Padma Shri Honorable HR Nagendra ji.

Taking interest in literature and flowing in this Ganges of knowledge and working in this direction, many research papers were published on literary and social subjects.

She also edited a book based on subjects like Shri Bhagavad Gita, human life and literature, which was highly appreciated.

In the field of editing of many magazines, She has left her mark by showing a high degree of scholarship. Apart from this, she has also been specially invited in social, religious and contemporary talks on All India Radio and Doordarshan.

She has enriched the knowledge of people through her research papers and lectures in many international and national seminars organized by various institutions and National Human Rights Commission.

In view of her interest and dedication towards her scholarship, literature, religion and society, she has been honored and decorated with many awards by the following institutions:

1. Indian Institute of Public Administration
2. Indian Institute of Information Technology
3. By Azamgarh Administration
4. Nehru Yuva Kendra and District Information Department, Azamgarh
5. Rotary Club International and Human Services Club